“ My cousin Alex was so sweet. He always had a smile on his face, a warm spirit, and a consistent love for those around him. Whether it was me, my mother, my brothers, or my sisters, Alex never stopped showing how much he cared.

Family meant everything to him. He was intentional about staying connected and making sure relationships remained strong. No matter how busy life became or how far apart family members lived, Alex believed that family was important and worth nurturing so he reached out often.

Not long ago, Alex called me, and our conversation centered around family. He talked about the importance of staying connected and reminded me that no matter how much we grow up or how far life may take us, family should always remain a priority. He didn't just talk about family, he demonstrated his love through his actions, his calls, his concern, and his commitment to keeping us connected.

I am so thankful that God blessed me with a cousin like Alex. He was an example of love, kindness, and faithfulness to family. His life reminds me that relationships matter, that family matters, and that love should be expressed while we have the opportunity.

Alex's smile, his caring heart, and his unwavering love for family will always remain in my heart. I will cherish the memories, the conversations.

Rest well, Cousin Alex. You were loved, and will be missed. ❤️

“ Cousin Alex you are gonna be deeply missed. Gonna miss your live videos and how you introduced yourself when you go live. Me calling you up asking questions about the video or me calling your sister Faith (cousin) inquiring about the video. Continue to watch over us and tell the family I said hello. Love you cousin Tanya.

“ The last time we spoke was a few years ago and the time before that had to be high school. We followed each other on Facebook. Each time we talked it felt like we talked every day. Alex had a caring soul. When i lost my brother, Ali he remembered how close we were and he called me. I was shocked he called but more importantly it was the realist most genuine call and conversation. I learned how he was caring for his mom and I was full admiration. As was as a kid watching him play sports. We will miss you Alex. RIP.

“ Alex always had business, and life advise. We would talk about God too! When we stop playing phone tag, We would talk for hours, because he could talk. One thing Alex would do when our business had promos he would let his friends know and tell them to support his family and they would. I'm going to miss our late night conversations and miss him.. Love cuz Vic

“ I still remember as a kid this man will always have something to say that would motivate me regardless if it made sense or not it was always something that would stick with me. Even now I can still remember when we was in Ypsilanti staying at grandmas house he told me about being the light and how it's on you if you want to keep it on or off. Hey man of any words I will always miss this man and I love him forever. ”

“ I remember when Alex was about 4 maybe and they lived in Kansas. There was about 11 of us. Took a trip to KMart in Kansas City on State Ave. It was like taking a class field trip. On our way home Aunt Judy realized Alex wasn't with us after roll call was made. We had to drive 30 minutes back to go to get him. He was sitting at the front counter holding a football. My dad had to buy I dink he already had it and was playing with it. Usually no one gets anything. I still don't know why my dad just didn't put the ball back and make him come on. Just cause he's little and cute doesn't mean he gets a toy

“ Brother-in-law, you are loved and deeply missed. 🥺 Thank you for introducing me to your brother 36 years ago! Wow! 🙏 Mark and TJ love you to the moon and back. ❤️ I don't know how Tyrone is gonna make it without you. 😭 Of course you know all of that. We thank God that you “won't be troubled no more” and we know the angels in Heaven are cracking up at your stories! 😊 Rest well. Love ☐ and Peace. 🕊️
